EXAMS

(Poem By Kanishka IX B)

It's time to be alone,
It's time to pay life loan.
It's time to work hard,
Not to play Guitar.
It's time to pick up the pen,
It's time to believe that you can.
It's time to boast up.
Not to Whatsapp.
It's time to read Maths book,
Not to update Facebook.
It's time to buy a watch.
It's time to remember whatever is taught.
It's time to sit and study,
It's time to get ready.
It's time to remember God,
It's time to wish to lord.
It's time of spring,
To forget all promises and rings.
It's time to touch the untouched books,
Not to copy Gill's look.
It's time to drive all the formula,
Take milk, instead of Coca cola.
It's time to make yourself perfect,
Diagrams are not to neglect.
It's time to use pencil for figures,
Tables must be on your fingers.
Don't worry! Don't take tension,
Reasons are important to mention.
Make your phone ready to take all the blames,
Come to take result and over the game.

Parents, we see you as partners in this journey. Together, let us ensure that our children grow with strong values, discipline, and the courage to pursue their dreams. Students, remember that every lesson you learn and every effort you make contributes to building not only your own future but also a brighter tomorrow for society.

Let us walk this path together- committed to excellence, kindness, and lifelong learning.

Warm Regards

The Radiance Within

In the silence where the cosmos breathes,
Beyond the veil that the mortal weaves,
Dwells a flame, serene and still,
Unshaken by gate, untouched by will.

It is the whisper the stars impart,
The quiet compass of the heart,
The strength to suffer, the grace to forgive,
The boundless courage to truly live.

Not in temples carved of stone,
Nor in chants of a crowd alone-
Spiritual truth is softly found,
In a heart where echoes resound.

It is the river that cleanses pride,
The inner lamp no night can hide,
A call to rise from self's domain,
To see the sacred in Joy and pain.

O seeker, cease your restless flight,
The universe blooms in inward light.
For he who learns to look within,
Discovers where eternity begins.

DOGS THE FIRST ALLIES OF HOMO SAPIENS

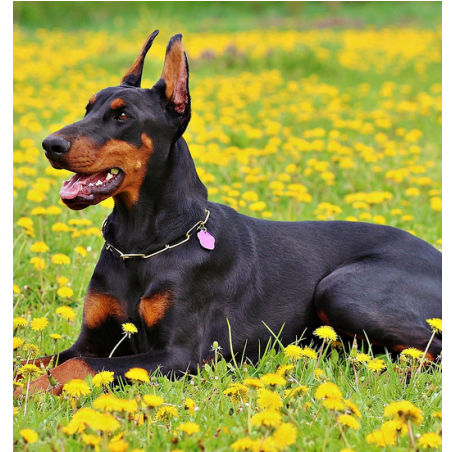

Indian society is divided on the issue of stray dogs. Dog lovers do not want them to be culled, while others want them removed from the streets as they are not only a danger to children but also a source of disturbance at night. The matter is in the courts, but have you ever thought about how these dogs became our companions and what role they played in our survival during the early stages of human existence, especially in competition with other human-like species such as the Neanderthals? Let's take a look into the history of dogs.

For thousands of years, wolves and Homo sapiens were arch-rivals because they competed for the same food resources. However, weaker wolves may have begun hovering near human settlements to pick at the remains of hunted animals or discarded leftovers. At first, humans would not have trusted these former enemies, but over time, these wolves must have shown affection and a non-threatening attitude toward humans. Eventually, some humans began breeding the friendlier and less aggressive wolves, resulting in a group that gradually became domesticated.

Over time, these wolves adapted—both behaviorally and biologically—becoming gentler, more social, and more responsive to human cues. This gradual process of domestication gave rise to the dog, the first species ever domesticated by humankind. Unlike livestock, which were tamed for utility, dogs were unique: they were companions, protectors, and partners in survival.

The impact of this alliance on the fate of Homo sapiens cannot be overstated. Dogs sharpened human hunting efficiency, guarded camps from predators, and later served as herders, guides, and even healers of loneliness. In evolutionary terms, they amplified human success. Had early humans never welcomed dogs, our ancestors would have faced the wilderness with diminished security and reduced chances of survival. Nights around the fire would have been longer, colder, and more dangerous. Hunting expeditions would have been less productive, and perhaps Homo sapiens might have remained more vulnerable to rival species like the Neanderthals, who also roamed the Earth. In short, dogs were not just friends—they were civilizational allies.

If dogs had not become our allies, perhaps humanity might not have survived to this day.

WHY ARE THEY CRYING?

You can see them all over the city,
particularly in the ghettos of the same.

They all are born like us to live,
but hardly can they gain a name.

They are timid, they are powerless,
They don't get food to eat.

On the other hand are we-
who have all the luxuries right at our feet.

WHY ARE THEY HOMELESS? WHY ARE THEY SAD?
WHAT MAKES THEIR LIVES SO AWFULLY BAD?

In sickening solitude and griefs galore,
They just can't bear the pain anymore.
But hardly do we pay any heed,
or help them in their gravest need.

When we see them we move away our eyes,
and cover our ears when we hear their cries.
For we are the rich and have our own class,
but we often forget we don't make up the mess.

It's high time we stop acting selfish and greedy,
and must act to banish the woes of the needy.

we will be helpful, we'll be ready,
We'll give them respect and make them steady.

Its a duty that we all must passionately do,
YOU HELP THEM OR NOT, IT'S UPTO YOU....
YOU HELP THEM OR NOT, IT'S UPTO YOU....

आर्टिफिशियल इंटेलीजेंस और हमारी जिंदगी

आज की दुनिया में आर्टिफिशियल इंटेलिजेंस (ए.आई.) हमारी रोज़मर्रा की जिंदगी का अहम हिस्सा बन चुकी है। जहाँ एक तरफ यह तकनीक हमारे काम को आसान और तेज़ बना रही है, वहीं दूसरी तरफ यह सोचने पर मजबूर करती है कि हम अपनी इंसानियत तो नहीं खो रहे। ए.आई. हमारे फोन से लेकर घर के उपकरणों, अस्पतालों से लेकर कारों तक हर जगह मौजूद हैं। यह हमारी जरूरतों को समझकर हमारे लिए निर्णय लेने लगा है, लेकिन क्या कभी हमने सोचा है कि जब मशीनें हमारी जगह सोचने लगेगी, तो इंसानी सोच और दिल की जगह क्या बचेगी?

ए.आई. की मदद से कई काम आसान हो गए हैं, लेकिन साथ ही ये सवाल भी खड़ा करता है कि हमारी निजता, भावनाएं और रचनात्मकता का क्या होगा? क्या हम सिर्फ मशीनों के पीछे पीछे चलने वाले रोबोट बन जाएंगे, या फिर इस तकनीक को अपनी मददगार बनाकर और भी बेहतर इंसान बन पाएंगे? यह दौर हमें सोचने का मौका देता है कि तकनीक हमारे नियंत्रण में हो, न कि हम तकनीक के। असली चुनौती है ए.आई. के साथ साथ अपनी संवेदनशीलता और सोच को भी जगाए रखना।

प्रकृति है तो धरती है

हरि भरी वादियाँ, सुंदर ये नज़ारे,
कल कल बहते झरने, मन को प्यारे।
चहकते परिंदे, लहराती हवाएं,
धरतीई की गोद में जीवन मुस्काए।
फूलों की खुशबू, नदियों की कल कल,
हरियाली से महके ये दुनिया पल पल।
आओ मिलकर इसे सुरक्षित बनाएं,
प्रकृति के रंगों को और निखारें।
